CO: Format is a requirements document; or else follow Web site user interface and instructions. DE: It is part of our in-house training material for staff. IL: Standard IACA LA: we have an instruction manual. MA: Regulations 950 CMR 113. MI: Review manuals are online. MT: The written materials are for manuals for Compliance Staff in the SOS office. NH: Names are keyed exactly as they appear on the documents. NJ: We have administrative rules. ND: Outdated. Update not a high priority given that we've not had any staff turnover. OR: Electronic desk manuals, on the intranet. TX: Rules have always been to enter exactly what was submitted. Current database allows up to 150 characters. If name exceeds 150 characters, it will be truncated.

MN: These procedures are used for internal use only. FL: The instructions are in our procedural manual used for training new employees and as a reference tool. IL: Standard IACA. MT: Since these materials are for compliance staff only, we are unable to provide a copy. NE: We do not have an electronic copy of our training manual. NC: Possible, the procedural guidelines are on an internet site for the office staff. I will find out if an electronic copy can be made available. ND: Not in the current format. OH: However, the information may not be helpful. It's system driven. TX: Not applicable. UT: We have an electronic book, but it is over 400 pages long, we can provide specific entries if requested. VA: They are voluminous and incomplete and are based on VA law and our 1982 computer system. MB: The instructions are too voluminous and disparate (in some cases hard copy). Romania: All comments are in Romanian.

		Modifications were done on consistent basis. FL: Years ago, (more than 15 years) we re-updated records where "the" and "a" had been moved to the end of the name. The names were originally updated with "the" and "a" in parenthesis, so they were identifiable by our IT staff. The names were corrected by staff. IL: Trust names were inverted in the filing office at one time to put the identifiable trust number at the beginning of the data entered. In November 2005, the Trust filings were all corrected to read the way that they were originally submitted to the filing office. LA: Name modified when name started with "the" or "Person's name." Database has been corrected. MA: Years ago, names were entered with the "the" and "a" moved to the end of the name. Currently, the database search will ignore the "the" and "a" regardless of its location in the name. It returns all names to display those entered with "the" and "a" at the beginning or end. NV: During the Conversion to Revised Article 9, Nevada changed moving (, The) from the end of the document back to the beginning. NH: In the Legacy System, there was provision to enter the exact name as well as the modified name. During conversion from our legacy system, the exact name was converted and not the modified name. OH: Not applicable. See 3b comment. SD: No electronic filings. TX: Only thing the office does that effects the name is truncate when the name exceeds maximum field length. WV: When searching, we search without "the" and if there is nothing, we will search "the." ON: At one time "The" was moved to the end of the name. This is no longer done and names of active corporations have been corrected.

MI: Names are entered exactly the same as on the document, except for about 20 entities with names longer than the data field in which we enter the name. For those entities, as much of the name as possible is entered with a message to "see history" and we put the entire name in history where we have a longer data field. MT: Again the name is entered exactly as listed in the document. NV: Because of space limitation on our mainframe system, we would abbreviate endings. SD: Abbreviated the name to fit the space prior to RA9 UT: In a previous system, some entity identifiers were sometimes abbreviated. Or if the name is longer than the field allows, the database name ends where the field ends. MB: Only in rare cases where names are extremely long.

	Description: ID: Not applicable. IL: There was no abbreviation after RA9. Prior to RA9, records that were abbreviated have not been altered unless it has been brought to the attention of the filing officer. If it is brought to the filing officer's attention, a data entry correction is made and a filing officer statement is added to the record. KS: As we find names in our system that don't match names on a new filing document, we research the situation and change the name in our system if needed. We rarely have to do this. ME: During the conversion from main frame application and card file system in January 1992, our office reviewed all names that were currently in an electronic format against the paper record to ensure the name was correct. SD: There was a manual review of all documents prior to RA9 and corrections were made at that time. UT: We have not changed any database names unless directed by filers. MB: Not applicable.

DE: Yes, we connect but only to the true and legal former name as our office does not recognize fictitious or assumed names. DC: Corporations division uses two separate databases: one for company management and another for trade names/fictitious names. Specialists can look in the trade name database and get information about legal owner of the name – be it individual or the company. FL: Current and former business entity names, if applicable are all "tied together" and can be found on a search regardless of how many name changes there are. If a foreign corporation adopts an alternate name for use in Florida because its name is not available, it too is tied to the "real" name and can be found on a search. Fictitious names are on a separate database and if "owned" by a business entity, are tied together in a fictitious name search. HI. ID: Use of an assumed name by an entity is noted in the comments. Searches will not find or connect assumed names with the entities using them. IA, KS: a Search will list previous names. LA: The current name can be connected to former names, MD, ME, MI, MS: began this practice 1/2/2004). MO, MT: If the applicant listed on a fictitious (assumed business name) is a corporation, a limited liability company or a limited partners, the fictitious name is entered on the history page of the applicant which does not directly tie the two together, but by going to the history page of the corporation, limited liability company or limited partnership, you can determine which fictitious names they have registered. NE: Currently yes, and we are working on bringing old records into compliance. We have a selection in our database to search for previous names. The complete name history will generally incur more than one search. NC: yes to the former names. However, fictitious names, and d/b/a names are not of record in the SOS's office. Rather, they are filed with the Register of Deeds in the county the entity is located. ND. OH, OK. OR: Only previous names of the same business entity, and current assumed names held by a business entity. That is, you can see the history of all the entity names a corporation, for example, has had. You can also see, via a special search, any assumed names it's associated with. Conversely, if an assumed name is held by a corporation, you can connect back to that corporation's record. PA: Yes but only for internal searching. RI: If you query under "Quick Monies, Inc." the search will yield "Quick Monies, Inc." identified as a "fictitious business name" and opens to the record of "ABC Original Investments" TX. UT: Current system connects all fictitious names and former (aliases) when searching in house, but does not on the public website. WV. WY. Canada: The current corporate name of the organization is connected on our database only to former names that were approved by Corporations Canada. No fictitious or assumed names will be found on this database.
