Additional comments:

Full text of email:

In Iowa, we have a custom application to handle business "correspondence". This app is used to generate letters for:

- * Filings that are rejected
- * Certified copies
- * Apostilles
- * Misc correspondence

The app allows users to select pre-written paragraphs and quickly compile a letter. But it's a 17-year-old that needs replaced.

- * How does your jurisdiction generate customer correspondence for rejected filings?
- * Do you have a single "correspondence" application or do you use multiple applications to generate correspondence?
- * Are there differences in how your organization generates paper correspondence versus electronic?

Thanks!

Kyle
