Because the search system does not automatically exclude noise words, those words are excluded when a paper search request is processed. IL: This question appears to be contradictory. If there is no data how can a search be completed? KS: Our current in house standard does not require the designated fields. We are working on a new in house standard search that will be implemented this year, and it will

The online search returns more than exact matches—it is a loose search. MD: The state of MD does not perform searches of the UCC Filings. ND: Currently we do not have designated fields; the search criteria is entered on a line as organization name or individual name (last, first, middle). OR: Searches can also be done by file number. Non-standard RA9 searches are available over the Internet. No searches over the Internet are certified "official."

Individual Names. For first and middle names of individual debtor names, initials are treated as the logical equivalent of all names that begin with such initials, and first name and no middle name or initial is equated with all middle names and initials. For example, a search request for "John A. Smith" would cause the search to retrieve all filings against all individual debtors with "John" or the initial "J" as the first name, "Smith" as the last name, and with the initial "A" or any name beginning with "A" in the middle name field. If the search request were for "John Smith" (first and last names with no designation in the middle name field), the search would retrieve all filings against individual debtors with "John" or the initial J as the first name, "Smith" as the last name and with any name or initial or no name or initial in the middle name field.	503.1.8	Yes, my office applies this rule as stated.
